LIVE BY HEART!

NOV 2017 - EDITION 12 - VOL 1

During session- break participants says, if there were inspirational videos included it can be more effective. Right, it is easier and it helps to get a quick kick plus increase in TRP.

I learnt staying inspired for 30 minutes will be similar to going to gym for 3 days, does not help. What matters is staying inspired, excited and energetic for 3 to 30 years. Difference would be evident in our circle, our organization or even the world around.

When I looked for my inspiration, I did not wait for them to come to me. I went little ahead to where they were and had a first-hand conversation on how they did it grounds up. I found, most started with what they have, where they are and did what inspires. Leveraging on what is already there. Be it acting, photo-shooting, singing, building a career and developing business or amass huge wealth.

Most of us pursue our interests as hobbies. In hobby we don't put everything at stake; may be due to constraints of time, efforts, money or social status. These constraints extends till our existence, we continue to have our obligations, interests and pains.

Inspired people I met had a reason to do what they were doing. They said, if this one act can give me day long happiness, day after day, year after year, why should I think of other activities? They learnt to turn their passion into profit and continue doing what they enjoy. They had zeal filled days and did not need a boss to monitor them. At junctions, they searched for guidance, went places, met people with a single aim improving on their passion.

I got struck when I understood, entertainments are for those who has not identified their passion. If one ever identifies his or her passion, they would be so busy in that direction, any amount of time in a day is insufficient. Choosing to leverage on what we have, can be a good start.

Authentic success, lasting happiness and a sense of having lived life fully, nobody owns that to handover to us. It is our primary responsibility and all of us have potential to make such difference.

Greatness stem when we stop looking outside and start probing inside. We find, the person in the mirror can do everything one dreams of. It emphasizes on the belief that, organization I am serving is the best, I doing the best business and I am among best family and friends'. This belief makes us take next step positively.

Ideas I share in the sessions are the ones which I came across in my pursuit of inspiration. It has been tested enough to ensure they are result oriented. It involves identifying our passion and knowing avenues to make difference in short span of time. These ideas are irrespective of the field we are perusing and are fundamental in nature.

Decide the playground, upgrade skills, make course corrections, stay relevant; play on strengths, put forth USP, let each play make one a better player and play to win.

Result, whole world can get inspired by you!
